HOW TO DEVELOP HOMES ACCORDING TO I&P

A house, let alone a home, is never built in a day.

Not even in two years – the average time it takes a developer to complete any home.

For us, building a home continues long after the keys are handed over to the proud owners. And well until many generations have been born and brought up into the wholesome beings that they are.

What we sketch into our blueprints go beyond mere zones and master layouts. What we inspect on the sites are not merely defects and details true to the plans.

We always keep this one thing at the back of our minds, and the front of our every endeavour.

The community. The people and the lives that will live in the townships we build. Their comfort, their sense of belonging and the place they call home.

It's been many decades for us. We now have in our portfolio more than 20 townships that have seen communities bloomed and blossomed. And their initial investments bettered and boomed. And their generations stayed and stayed.

Nothing has changed.

From the first house we built to the latest modern township in a prime urban location, we impart the same skills and careful considerations.

And the same set of values.

That if we first fully feel the immense joy and emotion of a homeowner from the time she picks her dream home to the time she unpacks the boxes and looks forward to her life ahead, we will always deliver beyond quality materials, designs and finishes.

We will deliver all that, and more, with the utmost care.
